The work of putting down the Crescent street sewer is under way under the direction of Street Commissioner Fellows, who has twenty men at work on the job, which was started on Friday. The sewer starts from Broad street, where the work is commenced, and will run through Crescent street a distance of about 1,108 feet. The greatest depth it will go will be thirteen feet and the kind of digging encountered will determine the time it will take to complete it.

Programme.

Eight-of the Anna M. Herr Y. W. C. T. U. members visited the almshouse Sunday afternoon, going on the 2.36 car from the square. Mrs. Fields conducted the service, as the president, Miss Christman, was detained by iliness. The keeper, Marvin Balley, welcomed the young women very cordially, and allowed them the use of his piano, which they appreciated.

Several hymns were sung, after which the twenty-eighth psalm was read and prayer offered. Miss Edith Flanders. Rev. C. K. Flanders' daughter, accompanied the young women and ably assisted them with her sweet voice by singing. She pleased the inmates with several zolos, besides assisting in the choruses. The leader gave them a short talk on giving praise to the Lord for all our blessings, and the rest of the hour was spent in singing several of the old familiar hymns, closing with God Be With You Till We Meet Again, and repeating the Mizpah benediction. Miss Inez Briggs was the accompaniet.

William H. Shields has received from Norwich, England, a copy of the Weekly Press of July 10, which has two references to the 50th anniversory celebration, including the impressions of Walter Hansell on his visit here. At the beginning of the story, which is headed 'Hands' Across the Sea,' is the invitation to the celebration, several of which were sent to Norwich, England, and it otherwise says:

It would have been an interesting mission for some representative citizen of this older Norwich to visit the newer Norwich upon such a felletone even in its history, more especially as the two towns are officially known to each other, and have on various occasions exchaused compliments. So far as we can learn there is only one citizen of Norwich, England, Mr. Walter Hansell, who has ever visited Norwich Conn. and he for unavoidable reasons was unable to accept the invitation. Mr. Hansell would have been able to renew acquaintance with many highly agreeable people. And there would have been this additional element of theses about his mission—he is, as everybody herehouts knows, one of the working hinges of the Pinjing Fleids and Open Spaces society which organization was instrumental some 16 years ago in opening up negotiations with the American Norwich, and paying the way for those postal triendships which have been maintained ever since. And there would have been this additional element of fitness about his mission—he is, as everybody here abouts knows, ane of the working hinges of the Playing Fleids and Open Spaces society, which organization was instrumental some 15 years ago in opening up negotiations with the American Norwich, and paying the way for those postal triendships which have been maintained ever since. The card of invitation to the anniversary celebrations is headed with a photographic view of Norwich. Comm. which shows the town nestling in the valley of a spacious river called the Thames, apparently about as wide as our own Thames at London bridge. Docks, whatves and warehouses line the river front, for Norwich, Conn., is naturally a port. Not, the most stupendous scheme that Mr. Botterill ever dreamt of, could give Norwich, England, a port like it. Upon either side of the river runs the rallway, and pleasant woodlands rise above it in a gentle slope. The rear of the town is covered by a line of distant hills.

The manager was immensely interceted on noticing my name and address in the visitors' book, and said he did not think he had ever before welcomed anybody from the English Norwich. After hunch I went for a stroll to see the main points of the city, and the first person I called on was Mr. Jonathan Trumbull, who is the librarian of the Offs public library. Mr. Trumbull, like many other people in the New England districts of America, is wonderfully English-like in speech and manner, He welcomed me warmly, spoke with enthough the instrumentality of the Playing Fields and Open Spaces society, and mentioned with pleasure the correspondence he had had with Agas Goose and others. Received by W. E. Perry-Five-Horse-power Engine and Will Make Eight Miles an Hour.

A handsome new motor boat has arrived in Norwich for William E. Perry of Broad street, and he was trying out his craft for the first time Monday in the Thames. The boat and motor are the products of the Racine Hoat company of Mukegon, Mich. and reached here in a freight car Saturday night. The engine is five-horsepower and will drive the boat along at the rate of eight miles an hour easily. It is fitted with reversible propellor. The boat is 35 feet long, dory built, and is a creditable addition to the Norwich navy.

Having taken tea with Mr. Trumbuil and his family, he and I in the evening went to visit Mrs. Lane and her sister, a Miss Gliman, and there also we met a Miss Huntington. Mrs. Lane's was a charming old house, as quaint and interesting as any you will find in the neighborhood of our English cities, and it was rich with beautiful things, pictures, curios, chua, and books. Mrs. Lane had been delighted with the English Norwich; and she told me of several other fown-people of hers who had also visited the mother city, and had brought home equally pleasant impressions."

Summing up his recollections, Mr. Hansell said that for a population of only 5,000, the city covered a large area of country. There are various signs of industrial life, but these were
